

Alex Watts is an artist based in Naarm/Melbourne whose work is focused on the interplay of light and shadow. She is focused on conveying feeling, mixed with transitory experiences to create a sense of movement and change in her work. Whether she is depicting a fleeting moment, capturing a moment of peace or the passing of time, her goal is to imbue her work with a sense of impermanence and serenity, inviting the viewer to linger and fully experience the mood of the painting.

Through her work, Alex encourages us to find quiet joys in the little things that make up our daily routines. By carefully considering the use of light, shadow and how it falls across the subject matter she hopes to create paintings that are both visually striking and emotionally resonant.

"I am captivated by the dynamic interaction between light and shadow and the ways in which they can evoke a sense of depth and dimension in a composition. My artwork is a reflection of my observations of the fleeting and transient moments in life, with a focus on capturing movement and change.

I am drawn to the use of romantic hues and ethereal figures in my paintings because of their underlying tones of nostalgia. My intention is to create a peaceful and serene atmosphere in my work, inviting the viewer to slow down and fully immerse themselves in the mood of the piece."
