

Matt James an emerging Brisbane painter primarily focused on landscape oil painting and drawing. Having grown up in rural West Wales Matt's love of the outdoors is a key driver of his work.

His work often represents actual places but is also constructed from his recollections and impression of the environment. His work explores the shape of the landscape, the perception of distance, the movement of clouds, and the shifting of the light.

Matt has recently returned to painting having studied in Central St Martins College of Art, London and embarked on a career in Graphic Design. He paints on a part-time basis in addition to running a successful design business.
