“Hovea Rock Scramble” is a triptych by Sky Jasper Mooney showcasing the rugged beauty of Western Australia through acrylic on board paintings. The limited palette of ultramarine blue, burnt sienna, raw umber, and cadmium yellow highlights the region’s ancient rocks, swaying gum trees, and grass trees, creating a stunning representation of the landscape. The artwork captures the essence of Hovea and its natural beauty through a harmonious use of colour and texture.

Sky Jasper Mooney is a painter who draws inspiration directly from his observed surroundings and is heavily influenced by the impressionist movement, which originated in Europe and spread to Australia. Carrying the torch for this style, Jasper incorporates its principles into his modern-day paintings, creating a unique and contemporary spin on a classic art form.

Jasper’s work is a product of his observations, as every mark he makes is a reference to something seen. Through his paintings, he explores line, tone, and value, creating works that are not only visually stunning but also serve as a representation of his experiences in life.

Having completed a Diploma of Visual Art from the Swinburne University of Technology in 2012 and a Bachelor of Fine Arts from the Victorian College of the Arts in 2015, Sky Jasper Mooney has honed his skills as an artist and developed a unique perspective on the world around him. His paintings serve as an invitation to the viewer to experience life as it happens, and to witness its beauty unfold.
